

Hendershot Coming Here.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 26 (P).—Lester J. Hendershot, of West Elizabeth, Pa., inventor of the “fuelless motor,” today denied all knowledge of a corporation in process of formation by Detroit friends to exploit his creation, but made known that he would go to New York Tuesday to confer with Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and others prominent in the world of aviation. The model of the motor which was on display in Detroit last week has been sent to New York, Hendershot said.

The New York Times

Published: February 27, 1928

Copyright © The New York Times